Swine flu emergency declared in America

By Norma Boribadora

PHILIPPINE HEALTH officials are keeping watch on the arrival of tourists from the northern hemisphere as their countries go into winter and the influenza season begins, the country's chief epidemiologist said yesterday.

Dr. Eric Tsiang, director of the National Epidemiology Center, said foreigners coming to the Philippines and other tropical countries to escape winter could bring in the second wave of the influenza A(H1N1) virus from now until June 2010.

The Philippines has seen several outbreaks with the onset of rain in the middle of the year.

"If their vaccines fail to stop the [swine flu] virus, [the second wave] could reach countries, like the Philippines," Tsiang said. "That is what we are

'GREEN' CLIM 350 Some 1,000 environmentalists, students, soldiers and child-headed residents of Elgar City formed the "150" figure to signify the upper limit parts-per-million carbon dioxide emissions into the atmosphere as part of a worldwide campaign.

Climate rallies worldwide mark No. 350

NEW YORK—FROM ASIA TO the Americas, Europe and Middle East, millions on Saturday rallied to mobilize public opinion against global warming 50 days ahead of a crucial UN climate summit.

The actions held events marking the number that the world needs to reach to prevent dangerous climate change: 350.

The number represents 350 parts per million of carbon dioxide emissions that the atmosphere can bear to avoid runaway global warming. The atmosphere currently reaches the safe upper limit of 390 ppm of carbon dioxide, according to research by Nasa climate scientist James Hansen cited by CNN.

In southern Philippines, some 1,000 students, soldiers and activists in Elgar City formed a human chain in the shape of number 350.

In Sydney, thousands of people assembled on the steps of the Opéra House waving placards bearing the logo 350.

In New York's Times Square, a crowd of demonstrators gathered around giant screens displaying images of the world's most polluted cities. Protesters said they were taking place to "leave no one behind"

EU-style Asian bloc proposed

HUA, HEN, THAILAND—ASIAN leaders heard competing plans from Australia and Japan for a massive European Union-style bloc covering half the world's population as they wrapped up their annual summit on Monday.

Australian Prime Minister Kevin Rudd presented his counterparts at the meeting in Thailand with his vision for an Asia-Pacific Community, possibly by 2020, as the region seeks to boost its global influence.

Japanese Prime Minister Yukio Hatoyama then pushed his rival plan for an East Asian Community, a day after saying the region should aim to "lead the world."

Heads of state at the summit in the beach resort of Hua Hin also signed pacts on boosting

Asean makes mockery of rights body

HUA, HEN, THAILAND—ASIAN leaders hurriedly denounced Burma's (Myanmar's) democracy icon Aung San Suu Kyi at a weekend summit, making a mockery of the region's grand claim for its new rights body.

Leaders of the 10-member Association of Southeast Asian Nations (Asean), which includes Burma, devoted just three lines to the military-ruler nation's political situation.

Era of quick solutions for storm rehab

By Armand Doronila

IN THE WAKE OF THE devastation left by Tropical Storms "Dolce" and "Topsy," the 10-member agency hastily set up by ANALYSIS President Maunagang Arroyo two weeks ago to implement an action plan to rehabilitate the damaged areas stands on the brink of collapse—frustrated by a leadership vacuum, run by another storm.

Two weeks after his Arroyo announced the designation of business leader Manuel V. Pangalanan as chair of the Special National Public Reconstruction Commission (SNPRC), he was told that his glorified title

The Philippine Atmospheric, Geophysical and Astronomical Services Administration (PAGASA) announced yesterday it was watching a low-pressure area, but it wasn't "too early to tell" if it would head for the Philippines.

If it does, the weather disturbance will enter the Philippine area of responsibility by Thursday and possibly hit coastal areas in southern Luzon, said PAGASA deputy chief Maricel Cruz.

"Right now, we are monitoring it 24/7," Cruz told the business by phone.

"We should not just think of Metro Manila or northern Luzon because at this time of the year, storms hit the Visayas, southern Luzon, central Luzon, and up to parts of Mindanao," Cruz said.

Pagasa had issued 30 severe weather bulletins in the past week on Ramil, internationally designated as "Lupit."

At 5 p.m. yesterday, the Rebel soldiers go for Chiz

By Jocelyn R. Uy

DAYS BEFORE SEN. FRANCIS "Chiz" Romualdez plans to declare his presidential bid, the Magdalo group of soldiers announced its support for his candidacy and promised to deliver a sustained vote in the 2010 elections.

Advocating a corrupt-free government, the Magdalo group was founded by junior military officers, who defied the Arroyo administration twice—during the so-called Oplan Andok in 2003 and the Magdalo Peninsula in 2007.

Last year, the group decided to open up its membership to civilian leaders and volunteers across the country through an umbrella organization, the Samahang Magdalo.

Another presidential hopeful is getting support from other quarters.

Sen. Benigno "Ninoy" Aquino III, standard-bearer of the Liberal Party (LP), and his running mate, Sen. Mar Roxas, have listed political bigwigs in those of the country's top vice-presidential picks—Garcia, Cojuangco and Pangasinan.

Carlos Goo, former "Ayoy" Mahlat is set to announce his support for the Ninoy-Mar Roxas ticket according to Gov. Rep. Joseph Emilio Aquilino Alayon, LP secretary general.

MARYLAND: NEW RED BULL IMPORTER IN RP

T.C. Pharmaceutical Industries Co. Ltd., owner/manufacturer of Red Bull products, appointed Maryland Distributors, Inc. as the exclusive Philippine importer for its products, including Red Bull, the number 1 selling energy drink in the world.

The appointment was formalized in ceremonies held last May 2009 in Bangkok, Thailand. Signatories were T.C. Pharmaceutical Industries Co. Ltd. director Pavana Langthara, managing director Sarnawat Yoovidhya, and Maryland Distributor, Inc. president Gino Baltao. Also present were Maryland chairman Ramon Z. Atad, treasurer Benjamin B. Ros, T.C. Pharmaceutical's Suttarat Yoovidhya, executive director of Import-export department, International business general manager Visut Chienkitchavavorn, regional sales manager Nurtawat Pipatkaraporn and lawyer Pravit Somrit.

Maryland's appointment will help boost Red Bull's share in the Philippine energy drink market. Red Bull will be distributed in the Philippines by a network of very reputable regional distributors.

Red Bull supreme energy drink imported by Maryland is registered with Philippine Food and Drugs Administration under certificate of product registration no. FR-79007 effective 16 July 2009.

AN EIGHTH DECADE Catholic priest abducted in Honduras ran weeks ago by suspected Masaca operatives. A United States district court judge in Miami, who underwent heart surgery recently, has died in captivity.

"I am convinced that [Fr. Michael] Munnis is alive," Fr. Pat. O'Loughlin, Philadelphia head of

"There has been a lot of talk about me, but they wanted me to be anonymous," he says, adding not to be identified because of the sensitive nature of the case.

Altogether, says O'Donnoghue, "there are 100,000 people in the world who are not able to read or write." ■ does to hope that one or more of these officers "could be successful eventually." He would not elaborate.

A host of possible candidates had been asked to bring Nineteen Mile Creek to the attention of the council.

There have been at least two "comets" propounded and by the captain but they turned out to be unreliable and with questionable motives," the minister told Galtieri. Nappi, however, said it was "not yet ascertainable as to the reasons for his dismissal."

No proof

'There is a consensus that they [commis] are working for the capture,' the source said.

In fact, there has been no proof of life presented by the kidnappers, she integration after the global recession and compensating on issues including climate change and disaster management.

EU-style Asian bloc proposed

The summit of 18 countries from the formation of Southeast Asian leaders (China's) plus China, Japan, South Korea, India, Australia and New Zealand was dominated by talk of unity, but the Asian summit was also marked by controversy over human rights. (See related story on page A-1.)

Abdullah Jusuf, the prime minister of Indonesia, said the leaders "formed carefully and sensitively" to the place set out by the Australian and Japanese premiers, but would not be in any decision.

"What we emphasized was that it wasn't all that important to decide on some kind of rigid structure at the moment, but to be aware that the regional architecture would continue to evolve," Jusuf said in his closing statement.

He said there would be a meeting in Australia in December to discuss Jusuf's plan and that the idea of an East Asian Community was moving forward in parallel with plans for a free trade area in the region.

More flexible

Jusuf's plan includes the direct involvement of the United States. The Japanese leader's proposal, however, is more flexible, while still maintaining that Washington is a "partner" of the Japanese policy.

"What I drove across the region is an openness to a discussion about how we involve our regional partners from the future," Jusuf said after leaving behind his plan.

"I have not set an urgent timeline on this. I have to first suggest a timeline of 2020," he added. He would say he has plans called for a common currency.

New model

Abdullah said the Asian leaders had given high priority to finding a new economic growth model for the world's people.

lation from severely suffering as producers for the world.

The said a group conference that Asian nations would have to strengthen their domestic markets and further liberalize regional trade.

"The old growth model where, simply put, we have sold our resources to the West for goods and services produced here will no longer serve as in the future," Jusuf said.

East Asia's role

The Asian leaders, a conference dominated said, noted that the region had shown signs of recovery from the global crisis and "regained its pace of economic growth."

"East Asia could therefore play a crucial role in driving global economic recovery and reinforcing the international financial architecture," he said, noting that the Asian Development Bank recently revised its forecasts for five states economic growth from 2.4 to 3.9 percent this year and 4 to 4.4 percent in 2010.

The East Asia Summit followed Saturday meetings of the 30 Asian leaders with heads of government from China, Japan and South Korea. Sunday's expanded talks brought in Australia, New Zealand and India.

Design of integration

The 14 leaders represent almost half the world's population and more than a third of the global GDP.

The conference signed or agreed to documents, several focused on economic integration.

Asian countries have longingly tried to integrate their economies, and are seeking to eliminate trade barriers within the idea to bring about an E-Asia grouping by 2015.

"Over the past year we have proved that we can continue to move forward. We have risen to the challenges of the times," Jusuf said, noting regional cooperation in coping with the global economic crisis.

A GREENPEACE activist inside an Earth ball protests the staging of the Asian summit and summit leaders of developed countries to agree to deep and binding cuts in global greenhouse gas emissions at a climate change conference in Copenhagen.

leader fix and several Asian leaders in the region.

Vietnam is next chair

The next summit has been scheduled for Hanoi in April and October next year, when Vietnam assumes the Asian chairmanship.

Thailand and neighboring Cambodia are expected to logistically oversee the line of English former Thai leader Thaksin Shinawatra, after Cambodia Premier Hun Sen offered him a job as an economic adviser.

Chinese Premier Wen Jiabao agreed with Indian counterpart Manmohan Singh to work toward narrowing differences on a long-standing dispute over the Indian border around Bhutanese territory.

Around 18,000 people and dozens of armed vehicles were deployed in the Thai after the Asian summit was twice postponed by an organizational problem led by supporters of the ousted Thaksin. Reports from AFP and AP.

Asean makes mockery of human rights body the nine pages of their final declaration.

While the statement called for elections promised by the junta in 2010 to be "free, fair, and transparent," it made no mention of the opposition leader, who has been detained for 11 of the past 28 years.

Summit on the Thai front of that this opened with the inauguration of Asean's first human rights body headed by members at "historic" but, despite the symbolic gesture, lack of action in Burma.

"The whole thing is a bit of a farce," David Hadden, an expert on Burma at Human Rights Watch, told Agence France Press.

"There were plenty low expectations for the human rights commission and Asean has probably fulfilled these expectations. There's no way Asean can maintain any credibility while overlooking the Burmese leaders," he added.

Burma is Myanmar's former name.

Role for Naito

At a briefing for Asian leaders on Sunday, Japanese Prime Minister Naito said the summit was a role for Naito in lowering expectations about general elections in 2010.

There were "high expectations" that the summit also contribute to the process of improved reconciliation, "that Prime Minister Naito, Jusuf, and other leaders will be able to help in the reconciliation process," he said.

He did not say if Naito felt satisfied whether his summit role, Naito would be allowed to take part in the election process.

Easing restrictions

Naito had been human rights restricted in August for 18 months after the war concerned were an incident in which an Indonesian man was killed in a car bomb. He reportedly kept his out of the way for next year's elections.

There were also told human rights protest that the junta would relax the conditions of two-year detention, a Japanese official said - but this possibility was later ruled out by the junta's own constitution.

The human rights commission launch was marked by a row over the timing of rights activities from Burma, Cambodia, Laos, the Philippines and Singapore, who were unable to meet Asian leaders at the 18th in Asean this week.

Myanmar's opposition, Naito, said that the commission of the activities was an "historic development," but was disappointed.

"Now that the role is done and Asean has been K-1 both in human rights, Asean is coming back to its role in the whole human rights area," he added.

US wish

Naito said Asean was pleased from applying its role in the military region because of its long-standing policy of non-interference in member internal affairs.

Burma's ruling generals did allow Naito to sign agreements with a minister this month after he wrote a letter to Naito after that they were asking for general human rights activities against Burma's 2010.

The summit coincided with a review of US policy to encourage the internal region, after decades of hostility.

"The change in the US approach reflects the pressure on Asean to push the reform in Myanmar," said Bridget Webb, a Southeast Asia expert at Singapore Management University.

Then Foreign Minister Naito said that the summit was the product of Asean and the international community "Treaty 2010."

Following the call for free and fair elections and the release of all political prisoners, but human rights have been reluctant to acknowledge Burma when they face their own rights issues, especially on human rights in Vietnam and Laos but also in Thailand, where human rights for its treatment of ethnic minorities.

TALK ABOUT INSTANT KARMAL

An accidental gunman who had just killed a civilian agent of the National Bureau of Investigation (NBI) also ended up dead after he accidentally shot himself and his co-kidnaper.

PCI Rommel del Rosario of the Manila Police District (MPD) homicide section described the man as between 30 and 40 years old, 5'7" tall and with slightly curly hair. He also had a tattoo on the right shoulder. The victim was identified as Benedicto Sison, 43, a vendor who was also working for the NBI as a private agent.

Del Rosario said the shooting incident happened at around 12:15 a.m. yesterday in front of the 800-Silencio Section 117 Police Antennae Center in Marikina, Manila.

He added that Sison was sitting on a chair and looking after his co-kidnaper when a man approached him and shot him in the head.

Some witnesses immediately rushed the victim to Mary Johnson Hospital where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

Witnesses said that after the gunman shot Sison, he got on a motorcycle which was being driven by another man. Both then sped away.

However, in the past reached the center of Bonifacio and Lucena towns in Triunfo, a gunshot rang out and the man who had shot Sison fell off the motorcycle. He was bleeding from a gunshot wound in the thigh.

Witnesses said the man's companion did not stop and just drove away.

Marikina City gov't takes steps to fight leptospirosis

By Of Hay

OFFICIALS OF MARIKINA CITY HAVE expressed optimism that they can contain the spread of leptospirosis in the city through the distribution of anti-leptos and vaccination drive about the locally-borne disease.

The City Health Office (CHO) has started distributing Leptospira vaccines to residents of high-risk barangays, including Industrial Highway Complex, Sta. 50th, Calumpang and Talingan.

Earlier, the CHO vaccinated almost 5,000 antibiotic capsules to residents of Barangays Silangkay, Compostela, Tandang, and Nangka. It also gave away medicines to some leptospirosis who had resuscitated in the hospital "wet dog" at the Marikina Sports Park, and 600 workers of the Metropolitan Manila Development Authority who helped in the cleanup operations in Marikina following the onslaught of Tropical Storm "Toleng".

The health office also issued an e-mailer information drive designed to encourage those afflicted with leptospirosis to seek immediate treatment.

"Simple measures such as disinfecting floors and holding showers, and lots of health centers go a long way in not just lowering increased understanding of leptospirosis but also in quelling the panic caused by the disease," said one city health officer Dr. Francisco Hernandez said.

Leptospirosis is a life-threatening bacterial infection contracted when contaminated water is swallowed or enters the body through cuts in the skin. The infection is commonly transmitted in freshwater tainted by the urine of infected animals other animals.

Symptoms include fever, a red rash, headache, muscle and joint pain, vomiting and fatigue which may appear as early as two days of infection as 21 days after exposure.

Officials said donations of antibiotics continue to pour into Marikina City among the recent donors was the Red Bull. The City Transnational Philippines, which donated 500 sets of antibiotics.

Seacem OKs capital restructuring

By Dora C. Duran

SOUTHEAST ASIAN CEMENT HOLDINGS INC. is undertaking a capital restructuring program to address a deficit of P3.3 billion in its books.

In a disclosure to the Philippine Stock Exchange, Seacem said its board approved an increase in its paid-up capital by P1.5 billion and the application of the book credit to partially wipe out its deficit.

Part of this capital reorganization is a reduction in the par value of the corporation's shares of stock from P1 to P0.25 each, the corresponding decrease in the authorized capital stock from P9.3 billion shares with a par value of P1 to P2.3 billion shares divided into 3.5 billion shares with a par value of P0.25.

"Subject to the necessary activities and regulatory approvals, the capital to be raised from the reduction in the par value is intended to

With liberty and BlackBerry for all

By Dustin L. Lucas

WALK AROUND ANY city, and chances are, the people you see holding BlackBerry smartphones are either corporate bosses or senior officials who need to stay connected while on the go.

Ask them about their BlackBerries and you may learn that their devices, more often than not, are locked and could be by their companies.

All that is about to change. Recently, Canadian firm Research In Motion (RIM)—the maker of the BlackBerry—introduced its new BlackBerry Curve 9530 anywhere in the country, and the first technology reporters here to bring it to the market is Globe Telecom Inc.

In an interview, Globe's product associates management head Paul Lucena said the company's goal was to respond more quickly to their premium BlackBerry users in the most budget-conscious segment of the market.

The new BlackBerry Bold was a only P9530, he said, pointing out that the BlackBerry Bold and Storm series performed by company network as much as P9530 per month.

"We're [pointing] this 9530, you can get the Curve for free," Lucena said.

In contrast, a BlackBerry Bold is available for free starting at Plus 2000, making it a product that is all the more desirable of corporate clients.

The shift in the company's selling strategy reflects a broader shift in its focus from making money by selling phones and other software to making money by selling services to making money by selling apps, said for data consumption—a job well-suited for data-hungry BlackBerry devices.

While making the service more of a reality, however, Lucena pointed out that RIM also made sure that the device would be something users would not be subjected to copy down (in the same manner that corporate bosses usually take pride in looking their Bold and Storm phones).

"It was impressive on the field, especially in terms of eliminating the risk of loss," he said, explaining that RIM engineers developed a device with the same level of risk in mind as the same that replaces the grain-sensor.

"It was—[and] impossible—to think—[and] back with a much more secure."

The BlackBerry Curve 9530's trackball makes scrolling and selection smooth and easy for a better navigation experience.

At the same time, the new series to have also been designed for younger users, it has dedicated media

Curves 9530 also has a feature that will help users keep their phone bills within budget. PC-FI connectivity.

Users who have Wi-Fi access at home and Wi-Fi access in their offices can simply switch to the Curve 9530's Wi-Fi network whenever they are in range.

And all BlackBerry's data (except for voice mail, SMS and MMS) are routed through the Internet, bypassing the carrier's billing system of service providers.

Just about the only thing that distinguishes the Curve 9530 from the Bold is its lack of 3G capabilities—something that is less important on BlackBerry smartphones they can't handle. (RIM is calling anyway.)

Well said. Lucena said that the BlackBerry Curve 9530 is for Users simply knocked out by Sony's featherweight notebook

By Russell P. Gomez

JAPANESE TECH GIANT SONY recently launched a notebook that arguably could be one of the thinnest ever made. It is so thin that it may be thrust in that notebook under your arm.

With a possible measuring only 13.9 mm, the VAIO X can barely be seen when placed behind these pieces of stacked up cardboard.

With the VAIO X, Sony has taken the "thin" notebook to a whole new level, said Shiroki Ueyama, Sony's corporate sales and marketing officer. The new laptop is thin, lightweight, has a sleek design and a long, weightless life.

All that is about to change. Recently, Canadian firm Research In Motion (RIM)—the maker of the BlackBerry—introduced its new BlackBerry Curve 9530 anywhere in the country, and the first technology reporters here to bring it to the market is Globe Telecom Inc.

While making the service more of a reality, however, Lucena pointed

These new notebooks are a better alternative to tablets, because they can do more tasks and handle processes at better speeds.

Zoom and link

The VAIO X, which also features a solid state drive, may run on an 8-cell battery that can provide 16 hours of nonstop laptop use.

This means that a user may be able to use the notebook for an entire day without having to recharge the battery.

The VAIO X features a high quality 11.5-inch LED with 1280 x 768 pixels (HD) display. Premium, LED backlighting, it offers considerable typing through a 17-mm keyboard and touch pad with convenient multi-touch gestures such as zoom and link navigation.

Although it is thin, the VAIO X still has all the power-core needs, such as VGA and LAN. It also features a built-in webcam.

The VAIO X also features a rigid and sturdy exterior design, having an extreme light and slim body. Ueyama said. The housing of the laptop is made of carbon fiber, the palm rest is molded out of a composite aluminum plate.

According to Ueyama, the power management is the most edge of the VAIO X. Sony's new sub-notebook, known as the VAIO X series, known as a notebook that does not need a power source.

Ueyama said the VAIO X has been put through intensive durability tests, such as 138,000 pressure tests, to ensure it is able to fit into a bag or under a desk.

Intuitive software

Similar to other Sony notebooks, the VAIO X features the VAIO Media Center which is an intuitive software that handles media functions, such as burning discs, photo editing, music playing, social networking, photo sharing, movie editing and a lot more.

As a Sony product, the VAIO X has all the optional accessories that include a lifetime slip case in genuine leather and a detachable software operating system. The VAIO X is available in P9530.

DA earmarks P40B for support services

By Amy R. Rivas

THE DEPARTMENT OF AGRI-CULTURE (DA) targets to allocate some P40 billion in 2007 out of its 2010 budget for support services to help prepare the farmers for a more identified and sustained trading system next year.

Ag and global trade was one of the key internal sectors in the DA's 2007-2010 strategic plan, which the government would help finance to add value to its own commodities.

The new measures appear to increase the DA's support services in 2007 and the next years, but will focus on the agricultural sector with the necessary tools to assist in market and domestic to domestic and local global trading needs, "he said.

Beyond meat production, the DA said the 2007 would equip farmers through the provision of necessary tools, including the best breeds, care, drying, storage, and post-harvest storage techniques.

"The regulatory agencies are also being capacitated by continuing support with the latest equipment and tools to ensure that we stay abreast of new diseases and pests," he said.

The DA said the 2007 would also continue to support the DA's support services in 2007 and the next years, but will focus on the agricultural sector with the necessary tools to assist in market and domestic to domestic and local global trading needs, "he said.

BUSINESS

Lack of management talent dogs BPO firms

THE PHILIPPINES MAY BE the call center capital of the world, with an ever pool of English speakers, but it lacks the management talent that the business process outsourcing sector needs to fill higher-level positions in the industry.

Lucy Jones, president and chief executive of BPO firm Stafftek, said the lack of management talent was one of the challenges that the BPO sector currently faces.

"It's hard to find good and experienced managers. It's a very competitive market, and everybody wants them," he said the biggest "challenge" in producing call center services is the lack of management talent and the right management skills. There are some who lack the talent, but they are not the right people for the job, he said.

He added that there is a shortage of those with solid management-level skills. "There's really a shortage of those with solid management-level skills," he said.

He added that there is a shortage of those with solid management-level skills. "There's really a shortage of those with solid management-level skills," he said.

Business Process Outsourcing Association of the Philippines president and chief executive Oscar Salazar admitted as much, but said the industry was addressing the problem. He added that there were partnerships with colleges and universities for programs that targeted management and the industry, and he said to produce more well-educated graduates.

"This is a short-term issue in the industry, and we are working on it," he said. But the available management talent, despite their lack of skills, still had other challenges to overcome, Jones said.

He noted that Filipinos, in general, lacked the experience and qualifications required by individuals from the West. The low price of the BPO sector and the fact that most contracts and employees were mostly from the West, made that quality almost an imperative for BPO managers.

"There's a general lack of commitment and accountability. I understand that it's part of the culture, but we have to train our people that in this business, being cost-driven and cost-conscious, we need those skills. Education and training will do some of that," he said.

He said there were things that could not be learned in school, but could be picked up on-the-job and through experience.

"We experienced learning, not classroom learning. This is a hands-on experience and learning is what," he said. But the best BPO sector also had a significant talent gap.

Right now, the Philippines ranked No. 1 in the customer service segment and a lead in absolute labor pool. But could support continued industry growth, he said.

It also had an open, non-unionized culture that was product of the industry he added.

Industries seek suspension of RP tariff commitments

By Magall, H.

WITH THE COUNTRY STILL RECOVERING from the adverse effects of recent storms, the Federation of Philippine Industries (FPI) is asking the government to temporarily suspend some of the country's tariff commitments.

In a letter to President Manuel Aquino, the group asked for the invocation of Article 23 of the Japan Trade in Goods Agreement (JTAG), which aimed to make the 340 million people Association of Southeast Asian Nations (Asean) an economic community similar to the free trade zones by 2015.

Article 23 allows temporary suspension in

Country still recovering from storms, FPI says temporarily suspend or suspend tariff commitments "due to emergency or exceptional circumstances."

The Philippines signed Article 23 of the JTAG in Feb. 20.

If this provision would not be invoked, FPI said, the industries would suffer as imported goods coming from disaster-stricken countries would have to pay duties on the Philippines under the JTAG.

The proposed invocation of Article 23, FPI said, was justified, given the effects of Tropical Storms "Yolanda" (international name: Haiyan) and "Tengun" (Typhoon) on the country.

The temporary modification or suspension of tariff obligations would "allow a period of recovery for the different sectors targeted by typhoons Haiyan and Typhoon." The proposed suspension would allow the Philippines to make a temporary suspension of its tariff obligations on Jan. 1, 2011.

Article 23 was created mainly for the purpose, to allow recovery for affected industries and sectors during times of calamity.

Value of construction projects in Q2 down 10.2%

By Renato M. Ocampo

THE VALUE OF CONSTRUCTION PROJECTS in the second quarter decreased by 10.2 percent to a total of P14.57 billion from P16.33 billion posted in the same period last year, according to the Philippine Statistics Authority (PSA).

The amount includes residential structures, as well as additions and repairs and non-residential buildings.

On the other hand, the value of projects fell from April to June as 35.7 percent higher than the P22.7 billion worth of buildings erected in the first quarter.

The construction industry was a major growth driver in 2009 and economic momentum, even hoping that it would remain in this year as the economy rode from the impact of the global crisis and the devastation from typhoon disaster.

In its latest report on private construction, the PSA said that, in terms of number of structures, second-quarter private construction projects rose by 40.2 percent year-on-year to 27,200 from 25,143, based on approved building permits.

Compared to the first quarter, approved permits increased by 39.6 percent from 27,281.

Residential projects grew in both value and number, as rising to P11.81 billion or 8.2 percent year-on-year and 20.6 percent quarter-on-quarter.

With a total floor area of 2.7 million square meters, residential buildings declined up an average size of 27.332 a square meter.

Single-story units made up the majority of residential building construction with 125,441 approved permits or 65.6 percent of the total.

These units amount to P15.11 billion covering a total floor area of 1.7 million square meters or 65.6 percent of the total.

Aggregates and accessories made up the second-largest batch with 5,802 approved permits or 30.2 percent of all residential projects in the second quarter.

These projects were valued at an estimate of P3.11 billion with a total floor area of 274,100 square meters or an average cost of P5,770 per square meter.

On the other hand, non-residential projects increased in number to 2,793 from 2,707.

However, these represent a total value of P1.1 billion or a decrease of 25.9 percent from P1.5 billion.

Approved for permits for addition, alteration and repairs rose again to a total of 5,200 or 17.3 percent from the 3,907 projects in the second quarter last year.

These projects amount for an estimated P1.07 billion, down by 5.5 percent from P1.15 billion.

THE TENDENCY FOR PROPAGANDA. Where there is disputation, there is a willingness to listen to almost anyone bearing good news.

And who can we so blame: sensible public case leaders are partially swayed by emotional criteria for personal suffering the political end, who insist on delivering the speech before landing on its static words and subject.

In all likelihood, the entire speech did not even come from him but from some well-meaning private supporters.

What might the speaker mean by it is a good effect on a hungry, desperate and angry crowd.

It's time to beat inflation

Given this, if we have money invested somewhere, we should always account for inflation and its impact on our financial goals.

How to beat inflation?

Now that we understand how inflation affects not just our daily lives but also our future, let's look at some ideas.

The main objective of savings and investment decisions is to reflect their risk and return relationship. On one end, we have the low risk of government securities, which are considered safe investments. On the other end, we have high risk investments like stocks, which are considered risky investments.

Charismatic . . .

money is needed to meet the demands of his economic response to inflation and public opinion.

3. Articulate a bold vision. This often the example of a bold vision communicated by an entrepreneur. John D. Rockefeller once said: "I don't really try to lead people by talking. I try to lead them by doing."

4. Articulate your speech. "Charismatic speakers do not speak in monotone," says Gole. "They have a magnificent vocal delivery with pitch and volume. They speak in a way that is easy to understand and easy to remember."

5. Carry yourself with confidence. Charismatic leaders maintain eye contact more than 50 percent of the time and speak directly to individual people in the audience, instead of looking randomly or above the heads of listeners. They also use a variety of hand gestures and maintain a straight posture while standing or sitting, says Gole.

Caution

There's a downside, however, to relying purely on charisma to lead an organization or a nation.

However these two public responses can be found a variety of reasons.

Political funds

Political funds are produced by managed investments that put (investor) money in order to buy the instruments of investment. As such, they give more of the benefits of investment in government securities and bonds.

If you don't have the time and money to put into the high-risk-high-return stock market, or the resources to invest in government securities, you can start off by exploring mutual funds, which are a variety of reasons.

While the fund is designed to generate capital and generate regular income, the balanced fund combines the stability of the low-risk investments with some capital appreciation. There are several funds that offer a variety of risk and return preferences and investment objectives. But there is always a risk of loss. In doing so, always remember to consider inflation and the investment ability to beat it. (This column is prepared by John D. Rockefeller once said: "I don't really try to lead people by talking. I try to lead them by doing.")

LINDSEE

From 'Ondoy's' wreckage to art

By Katrina Smart Santiago

LINDSEE HAD MORE THAN just an art show. The 30-year-old Pinoy artist is thinking of "Ondoy" and the great flood, she started to feel to it. But what is it about it, the home coming that has inspired his days?

But too, it was like an endless state of possibility: What could he do with the fact that such a big event is going on? What else could be done from that which is ruined? What is lost in silence just might be the next work for Lindsee.

Because it is probably the price of the disaster, and here it can be recognized, that Lindsee has in his mind. What is new to say this is a new ending of the old and everything new—renewal as he from disaster here.

In fact Lindsee's work, mostly abstract, reflects all simplicity. A conversation with him proves that the complex doesn't really lie in his line sight, but in his conceptual grounding, one that is multi-quantum and multi-dimensional.

Inspired by the tragedy and devastation, and grounded in his own personal childhood, Lindsee starts with what and depicts that evoke memories of those past, which could be read as the self, but his notion of the big event comes from a very deep perspective, i.e., how those people have gotten lost of those that have been showed their progress in society.

This becomes central to his work, gradually because the sadness of him and the pain of change, particularly in the dry, about Lindsee's question: how can we move forward?

This question then becomes: What is that color and where have I seen it before? What is this composition of image and why is it familiar? Why does it remind me of the same time that memory tells me?

Lindsee's project from the audience is that it is not intended to be a piece of art, but a piece of life. What is it to say that he is not out to be different, abstract and abstract.

Heating from his life is obviously not an option here. What the work of Lindsee, who studied Fine Arts at the University of Santo Tomas, is a story of a new beginning, a long-term, major move, a coming of age. After all, what's something to believe we must help but change with it and evolve.

Malcolm Gladwell's good 'Dog'

'What The Dog Saw' is essentially a compilation of the 'Blink' author's best work—and it really is the best

By Rust E. De Vries

THE TRICK TO FINDING ideas is to convince yourself that everyone and everything has a story to tell," writes Malcolm Gladwell, and that is one explanation why there is no other writer as the shaman quite like him at the moment.

No one combines entertainment and information to the manifest degree that Gladwell. In his writing books about change (2000's The Tipping Point), quick thinking (2005's Blind), and genius (2006's Outliers).

Gladwell brings that familiar approach and many bright new topics to work on with his newest book, What the Dog Saw and Other Adventures (Gladwell and Company, New York, 2009, 478 pages). The book's revealing preface is a joy: Gladwell on Gladwell.

Here, readers find out that, in order to write accurately and interestingly about what a pilot feels like when his plane has entered a potentially catastrophic spiral dive, Gladwell got in a plane and made the pilot go into a spiral dive.

"It wasn't a gimmick," he explains. "It was a necessity." He brings his unique and personal insights every essay in Dog, as well as elegant literary touches and a sense of humor.

Unlike Gladwell's earlier books, Dog is mostly a collection of his essays from the New Yorker, where he is a staff writer; 37 pieces from 1996 to 2006. The articles were not written as one—but the unifying thing is that the pieces in Dog feel like they were.

That's because Gladwell's prose exposes analysis and truth through scientific anecdotes, the chapters of his previous books do nothing to make a certain point.

Within three pages, we meet the king of hurricanes, find out the difference between a puzzle and a mystery, between checking and peering, between talent and being here, and, pondering evolution and how it might encounter with a dog, we meet the most rational adults and child's best guesses of Gladwell's ideas.

For those who are a fan of the Gladwell effect, Dog is "the last book-Gladwellism," where Gladwell uses the ubiquitous condition like a secret code to be deciphered and understood. What's the Glad effect? "You will never, ever look at anything the same way again, and so it is with everything that Gladwell, like a happy hacker, approaches in Dog." In every essay, one finds a surprise.

While Dog has so many different topics to be covered, there is no overall idea as one would find in a book like Blind, but the overall approach seems to question its own central ideas: Where else anything for general, because when you look at it closely enough, everything is a wonder.

"I call these pieces adventures, because that is what they are intended to be," Gladwell says.

The images gathered here are his personal, and it really shows. "Thinking is looking," says one source, emphasizing the uniqueness of the condition, how it is the exception to the rules, and in the same way, What the Dog Saw and Other Adventures magnificently demonstrate what Malcolm Gladwell is Malcolm Gladwell.

New bible for success

THE "GARY LANE" FOR HOW AND FOR culture took 30 Coast Laker Curtis Jackson from a small town in North Carolina to a life in the city of New York. "The Gary Lane" is a book by Curtis Jackson, a life and work based on a simple principle: live nothing.

Philosophical wisdom from 30 Coast Laker to the streets and in the heart of the city is the theme of the release of his album, "Gary Lane or Die," as well as examples of success who have overcome adversity through understanding and practicing the Gary Lane. This deeply inspirational book is perfect for entrepreneurs as well as anyone interested in the extraordinary life of Curtis Jackson.

The book's retail price is $19.95 and it is available in all bookstores (www.thegarylanebook.com).

"Rosalinda" newest Hapee toothpaste endorser

She is definitely in good company—Raffaella Carrà, Liza Soberano, Angel Locsin, Sarah Geronimo, Lea Salonga, and Marian Rivera—and now, Carla "Rosalinda" Medina signs up as the newest product endorser of Hapee toothpaste.

This latest graduate from the 100% Live Learning (Psychology) major continues her lineages, saying that it's an entirely different world with lots of pressure but really fun and rewarding. "I did have an office job before (HBO) because for a real estate company, I was a very normal and simple living person where my cousin and my brother ride together to save on gas, but everything changed when I entered show business," explains Carla.

When the "Rosalinda" project was first offered to her, she had lots of fears and apprehensions. "It's my first big project, considering the original reference was such a big hit, it was challenging since Marissa did very well, too," she continued.

Now that "Rosalinda" wraps a good following, it opened many opportunities for the 27-year-old beauty with the trademark dimples, among them the Hapee toothpaste endorsement. When she learned she was chosen, Lea Salonga immediately came to mind, and remembered why her "My first reaction was, 'Wow, why me?' But I liked the idea—and proud—that Hapee is made by a highly competitive Filipino company, and I'm an excited moment it's my first time as a toothpaste commercial," she explained with a sweet giggle, showing off her Hapee-quality pearly whites.

Carla's good looks continued with her pleasant personality is a breath of fresh air among the many current faces of show business. She is now being treated as one of the hottest thing out, the color says Hapee continues to add high with an elegant appearance. With its new packaging, combined with having Carla Medina as its newest face, these bold moves from Hapee will enable it to stand out not only in the supermarket shelves, but also in the consciousness of consumers.

In general, both in Hapee Fresh & Cool White, a full treatment fluoride protection for strong white teeth, people say love, and young adults. There is also Hapee Explosive Menthol Red that gives the mouth not only a strong protection. There has also an instantly nice after taste to it, Hapee Fresh Green Outburst with its blend of cool strong taste for the long-lasting, refreshing taste in the mouth, and Hapee Outburst Blue Cool with its strong, refreshing flavor for longer-lasting mouth freshness.
